The Battle of Omdurman, 1898

Think back 104 years ago- no television, no video, no CNN, no colour photography, newspapers and magazines almost exclusively black and white. The only way people could experience the colour of a news event was through posters such as these. This pair of large colour posters depicting the great Battle of Omdurman on Sept. 2, 1898, was published by G.W. Bacon Ltd. of London. The artist was A. Sutherland. Image size is about 28 x 19 inches. The detail is incredible- hundreds of detailed individual figures, a key to code numbers identifying the principal features. Each regiment is shown with its proper uniforms. Both prints still have the explanatory sheet intended to be pasted on the rear, although one is damaged. I have never seen posters such as these before. When I competed with Sotheby's to buy the Wybrow Collection, this was one of the items in which they showed intense interest. Colours are bright and unfaded, some foxing on both prints.

no. 92 $800.00

no. 93 $800.00
the pair $1500.00

Notes to Catalogue 95

Michael Wybrow's vast Churchill collection included a generous selection of prints and posters. many of the highlights like the 1898 Battle of Omdurman prints, the Countryman County Maps, and the prints of paintings by Churchill covered the walls. In addition there were four large 25 x 35 inch portfolios with plastic sleeves under the bed, which incidentally are now for sale.

Most of the previous catalogues from this collection have filled out your bookshelves. This one will cover your walls

89 Lord Ismay Presentation, signed by 22 people

A very unusual 12 x 14.5 inch sheet of quality paper, mounted on board, which reads - A Dinner Given to Lord Ismay on the Occasion of the Publication of his Memoirs, September 26th, 1960. Filling the rest of the sheet are signatures in blue of 22 people- Churchill, Alexander, Ismay, Jacob, Auchinlek, Colin Coote, Cunningham, Slim, Spears, and Colville. Before you start taking out new mortgages- the really curious feature is that the signatures are all printed. I can only surmise that an original was done at the banquet and a copy supplied to each signatory. A delightful piece, begging to be framed on its own or with photos of the participants. $400.00

85 wartime Arabic poster of Churchill
